Dear Jamsari

Thank you for submitting your manuscript:

Conserved structure of the NPR1 gene distal promoter isolated from local chili pepper(Capsicum annuum L.) in West Sumatera

Jamsari Jamsari et al.

Funders: you have stated during the submission process that this work has been funded by:
Universitas Andalas –Padang, West Sumatera-Indonesia, via Professorship Cluster Research Grants (18/UN.16.17/PP.RGB/LPPM 2018)

WHAT WE DO NEXT

Before accepting your article: we will check content suitability, readability and manuscript format; adherence to ethical standards for the type of study; that the underlying data have been supplied (where appropriate); and that there is sufficient detail to enable others to replicate the study (if applicable).

Before publishing your article: if we accept your article, we will be in touch in the next two or three working days with any issues that need addressing. You will then receive a final proof of your article for approval, prior to publication.

WHAT YOU NEED TO DO NEXT

Before doing anything else, we need you to suggest at least 5 suitable referees to peer review your manuscript following publication (in accordance with our publishing model), should it be accepted. We will need these names before we can publish the article so we recommend identifying them now via the MV RFFFFFES page for this article. You can also access this page via the article's record at Mv

Thank you for your submission to F1000Research. We have noted a few minor issues with your manuscript (below) – once these are addressed we will be pleased to accept your article for publication.

Content: There are a number of queries relating to the content of your manuscript, present as comments in the downloadable Word file. Please respond to each of these, with particular emphasis on the Methods, which should be able to be reproduced by readers from the information you give

Data availability: Please deposit the sequence you generated in a suitable online repository, such as ENA or GenBank. Please note this is required for publication, and we will not be able to publish until the sequence is made public.

Payment: As F1000Research is open access, we will require payment of the Article Processing Charge (APC) to be able to complete the processing of your submission. As your article is currently classified as a medium-length article, the APC is $500. Please provide us with the name, postal address, e-mail address and VAT number (if applicable) of the person or single organization taking responsibility for making this payment. Please also let us know which currency you prefer to pay in (USD, GBP or EURO). Our Accounts department will be in touch regarding payment.

We have also lightly copyedited your article - please download the document and check you are happy with the amendments and then address our queries using track changes in Word. Please return your revised manuscript to the e-mail address above. Please note that this is your final opportunity to make any changes to the content of your manuscript. Once the typeset PDF of your manuscript has been created, we will send you a final PDF proof for checking prior to publication.

We have just published a referee report for your article on F1000Research, which you can read here.

If you wish to respond to the referee, please go to the link above and click 'Respond' below the referee report. Please allow up to one working day for your comments to appear. If you 'Track' the article, you will automatically be alerted to any other reports or comments made.

NB: Your article will pass peer review and be indexed in PubMed, PMC, Scopus, Embase and other indexing sites, if you receive either two 'Approved' statuses, or two 'Approved with Reservations' statuses and one 'Approved' status from the referees.

In order to ensure that peer review proceeds quickly and you get at least one more report, we recommend that you suggest additional referees. Please visit My Referees, where you will find a useful tool to help you identify further referee candidates (see also our referee criteria and tips for finding referees).

We would recommend waiting for additional referee reports before starting on any article revisions.

Best regards,

Yours faithfully,

Dear Dr Jamsari,

Conserved structure of the NPR1 gene distal promoter isolated from a chili pepper (Capsicum annuum L.) in West Sumatera
Jamsari J, Oktavioni M, Nova B, Candra IA, Asben A and Syukriani L

I hope you're well. We have published another peer review report for your article in F1000Research at <https://f1000research.com/articles/8-52/v1#referee-response-47197>.

As you have now received 2 peer review reports and your article has not yet been indexed, please let us know how you'd like to proceed:

- 1) You can revise your article and publish a new version, together with a response to the reviewers. We will then contact the reviewers again for comments on your revision and an updated approval status.
To submit a revised version, simply log in to F1000Research and go to My Research > Submissions, download the latest version of your article and then submit the revised version when you are ready. During submission, you will need to give us a brief description (no more than 300 words) of the main differences compared with the previous version - this will be published alongside the new version.
- 2) Alternatively, if you wish to continue with the peer review and try to receive further reviewers opinions before you revise, please continue to suggest additional reviewers, via your Suggest Reviewers page, where you will find a useful tool to help you find reviewers; you can also access this page via the article's record under My >> Submissions.

It is your decision which option you wish to pursue. If we do not hear otherwise, we assume that you are revising and look forward to hearing from you when you are ready with your submission.

If you wish to respond directly to the reviewer by adding a comment to their report (now, or at a later stage), please click the

Dear Jamsari

Conserved structure of the NPR1 gene distal promoter isolated from a chili pepper (Capsicum annuum L.) in West Sumatera
Jamsari J, Oktavioni M, Nova B, Candra IA, Asben A and Syukriani L

It's been a while since we've heard from you, so we wanted to check whether you were aware that your article has not yet passed peer review.

Your article has received peer review reports with the following status(es):

2 Approved with Reservations

To pass peer review, and be indexed in PubMed and Scopus, the article must receive at least two peer review reports with the status 'Approved' or at least two reports with the status 'Approved with Reservations' and one with the status 'Approved'.

Until now, we have assumed that you are in the process of revising your article in response to the peer review reports. However, as we have yet to receive your revisions, please can you update us on whether you are in the process of revising or intending to do so in the future.

If you need any assistance, please let us know and we will be happy to help - we look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards

Dear Jamsari

Thank you for submitting a new version of your article:

Conserved structure of the NPR1 gene distal promoter isolated from a chili pepper (Capsicum annuum L.) in West Sumatera
Jamsari Jamsari et al.

WHAT WE DO NEXT

We will check your submission to make sure we have all the files and information we need and will be in touch in the next two to three working days. You will receive a final proof of your article for approval, prior to publication. At that point, we usually contact the reviewers who reviewed the previous version of the article for any further comments or changes to the status they originally awarded your article.

WHAT YOU NEED TO DO NEXT

Nothing, just relax and we will be in touch shortly. Don't forget you can track the progress of your article via My Research >> My Submissions.

Please bear in mind that it is possible the reviewers of your previous version might not be available to review this version. If this is the case and further reviews are required, we will be in touch to discuss the best way to proceed, which may involve asking for further reviewer suggestions.
