LEVEL DESCRIPTION

Pre-intermediate Level (CEFR A2)

Can hold a limited conversation in English asking for, understanding and offering information for a variety of everyday contexts and more specialised topics. Able to discuss familiar items: expressing an opinion and asking for clarification. Although some inaccuracies will occur, they are able to use structures and vocabulary to explain and describe some quite complex ideas. Can read a variety of texts and write a simple letter or narrative.

Intermediate Level (CEFR B1)

Can initiate, hold and close extended conversations and discussions across a range of everyday and more specialised topics and situations. Despite some inaccuracies and limitations in vocabulary and structures, spoken and written English should be quite clear and followed without too much strain for the listener or reader. Can read a wide variety of texts.

Upper-intermediate Level (CEFR B2)

Can hold conversations and take part in discussions expressing quite complex ideas and detail over a wide range of topics and situations with a reasonable degree of accuracy and fluency. Have a wide range of vocabulary including idiomatic and technical items and can cope with different accents and speakers. Can read and write different types of texts.
